

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

GERMANY'S CENSORSHIP AND NEWS CONTROL

SIR,—The interesting and instructive article on this subject in your July number reminds me that Heine, like so many others, was a victim of Prussian atrocity. In his essay on the History of Religion and Philosophy in Germany he says:

In Germany the censors were to officiate as literary midwives at the birth of printed thoughts, and to strangle such as the Governments might not wish to live. All books, pamphlets, etc., were to be submitted before publication to a censor appointed by the State, and he had full power to erase all he deemed unfit. We Germans are the strongest and wisest of nations; our royal races furnish princes for all the thrones of Europe; our learned men are pre-eminent in all the sciences—and yet—if we wish to insert in a newspaper "My dear wife has given birth to a little daughter, beautiful in Liberty," then the censor grabs his red pencil and strikes out the word "Liberty" (1830).

As a psychiatrist it seems to me that the domination of all the Germans by the great paranoiac does not make for mental soundness, and that retribution is inevitable.

PORTLAND, MAINE.

JAMES M. KENISTON, M.D.

AN INTERNATIONAL HOLIDAY

SIR,—For many years I have been buying at the news stand THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW. Your attitude on the war is so eminently American and satisfactory to me that I desire to extend to you my congratulations.

There is one matter which appeals to me and which I believe you can bring about through your magazine, and that is the Internationalization of Memorial Day. Our soldiers oversea observed the day this year. As the soldiers both of the North and South who participated in the Civil War are fast answering the last call, it will be for the soldiers of the present war to keep alive the day; and if the nations fighting with us for Democracy and Christian civilization against Hun autocracy and Kultur can be induced likewise to observe the day, it would not only become the one International holiday, but would also be a strong link for the future in binding more closely all those that are fighting for our cause.

Hoping that you will think this of sufficient importance to enlist your advocacy thereof, and thanking you for your inspiring editorials, I am,
OMAHA.

E. W. SIMERAL.

[Is it not probable that a new International holiday will evolve from the present war?—EDITOR.]

THE ALIEN PRESS

SIR,—Your article on "The New Fourth of July" in the current number of THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW was exceedingly interesting, and it would be very beneficial if certain certificates of naturalization issued in this country could be cancelled. Although a foreign-born citizen, to me your argument in that respect seems unanswerable. I trust that your article may have a practical effect, and I write to encourage you to press forward until something definite is accomplished. I wish that you would some time in the REVIEW express your views upon the prohibition of newspapers published in foreign languages. It seems to me that in this section of the country they are exceedingly harmful for many reasons, although not willfully so. They retard the development of the proper American spirit to too great an extent. Accept my congratulations upon the excellent contents of your last issue, and pardon my intrusion upon your valuable time.

DELL RAPIDS, S. D.

HENRY ROBERTSON.

[See the REVIEW for June, 1918.—EDITOR.]

A VOICE FROM CHINA

SIR,—I have long been a regular and admiring reader of the REVIEW, though it requires over a month to reach me here in North China, where I have lived for the past six or seven years. After perusing your editorial in the May number, "The Jap or the Hun," I feel constrained to call to your attention two recent books which should be of interest to all thoughtful Americans. They are S. K. Hornbeck's Contemporary Politics in the Far East and J. H. Millard's Our Eastern Question. Might I even venture to hope that you will publish a portion of this letter, so that the attention of your readers may be drawn to these important works?—though they scarcely bear out all the views expressed in your editorial.

I assure you that I shall continue to be

CHANG CHUN, MANCHURIA.

AN ADMIRING READER.

BUYING FROM GERMANY

SIR,—I am heartily in accord with your views as expressed in the July NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW as to the desirability of buying nothing made in Germany. May I suggest that an important consideration seems to have been overlooked? Of every dollar which goes into German pockets a certain amount passes into the Treasury of Germany to be expended for war purposes. It is well known that the leading men in that country anticipate and are preparing for "the next war". Every purchase, however small, of German goods helps to swell Germany's war chest. Herein lies my principal reason for never contributing to that nefarious enterprise, even indirectly.

PRINCETON, N. J.

C. F. GOODRICH.